These Alphabets it is hoped, may be of some use to the enquirer into the Antiquities of the South of India. The Compilation was made many years ago, and it is perhaps to be regretted that the publication has been so long delayed. This delay, however, has enabled the Compiler to benefit by the zeal and ability of Mr. Walter Elliott, of the Madras Civil Service, to whom he is indebted for many of the Ancient Karnataka Characters, which had not come under his own observation, while in India. He has no doubt that from later discoveries, many other forms of Characters, might be added to the Alphabets of the other Languages also, but it has been thought advisable to publish the Compilation in its present state, leaving it to those who may take an interest in such subjects, to fill up the spaces that are left vacant, as it may suit their opportunities or inclination.

It is necessary to mention that the small dot in the corner of the square, signifies that the character is Ancient, and that under the head of Malayalma, are also included the Characters of the Sister Dialect, the Tuluva.

Blank grid area for the first section of the document.

Handwritten text in the second section, starting with a large initial letter.

Handwritten text in the third section, continuing the narrative or list.

Handwritten text in the fourth section, featuring several lines of script.

Handwritten text in the fifth and final section, concluding the page's content.

A blank sheet of graph paper with a grid pattern. The grid consists of small squares. There are some faint, illegible markings and lines scattered across the page, possibly from a previous page or bleed-through, but no text or figures are present.

Table with 15 columns and 15 rows. The text is extremely faint and illegible. The structure appears to be a ledger or a data table with multiple columns for different categories and rows for individual entries. The text is mirrored across the page, suggesting it might be bleed-through from the reverse side.
